

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A depression area in fibers of a carpet are raised by penetrating a pointed end of a bent stiff wire probe through the carpet adjacent the depression to be removed and then the bent wire probe is manipulated to position the pointed end under the depression. The tool is then further 5 manipulated to raise the depressed area with the probe point and then the depressed carpet fibers in the depression are brushed to raise the fibers and the tool is thereafter removed.